CONFINEMENT TRIAL SET

FINDING THE RIGHT CONFINEMENT MEAL

The confinement period is vital for mothers to pay special attention to their diet and what they consume, as their bodies will be absorbing the required nutrients to gain strength and recover physically. The postpartum recovery period is not merely a traditional upkeep but a necessity where an ideal diet can help mothers avoid suffering from poor health and experiencing common symptoms like backaches and headaches.

Common types of food beneficial for confinement:

- Ginger – To keep the body warm and eliminate ‘wind’ inside the body.
- Red fermented wine – Improve metabolism and lowering cholesterol levels.
- Pig trotters, livers and kidneys – Has high protein and iron content, gelatinous collagen and promotes blood circulation.
- Herbs and medicinal foods like Chinese Angelica root and black fungus – To regulate the menstrual cycle, improve vitality and cleanse the arteries.
